

Build Your Business - LIVE

September 11 - ProfResults Meeting LIVE

In real estate I found out that you can do an amazing job for people, like truly exceptional in terms of results... and they will still absolutely hate your guts and recommend people work with someone else if you don't nurture them emotionally.

When you ask clients to give you stuff or send you stuff or basically follow any instruction at all... you will figure out how hard it is to make a human perform a task.

- (probably) lost a client, was fully and completely and unequivocally Arno's fault
 - shit qualification
 - left them dangling too long
 - they actually considered going to someone else
- x-ready to launch ads on Meta (new lessons dropping)
- x-retargeting video plans so we pepper them from ALL angles and ALL platforms
- x-Doubled revenue for client
- x-Progress on construction client
- x-Progress on cold outreach stuff
- x-Landing page -> <https://profresults.com/google-business-profile> (work in progress)

Leadgen ad on the app - can try that. (retargeting options? - Arno will check this)
(note to self - let's run with the native leadgen and then retarget everyone that watched more than 25% of the video)

1. Lead views the ad
2. Lead clicks on learn more
3. Lead fills out instant form / website form
4. Can gets notified
5. Can analyzes their business
6. Can calls them to set a meeting
7. Can creates quick audit of their GBP using AI
8. We offer to fix this for a one time of 200€
9. Start fulfillment process
 10. Get access to their GBP with Leadsie
 11. Make a "status quo screenshot" for GBP case study
 11. Do the full optimization
 12. Set calendar event to make "after 4 weeks screenshot" for GBP case study

August 22nd — BYB Live: Prospecting With SPEED

Alright. Let's wrap this live call up so you have action items and actually some useful notes so that you can just blindly copy this tactical ting.

SCRAPING WITH SPEED. Or prospecting.

THE TWEET

<https://x.com/canersoetz/status/1958209235210113145>

This is actually allowed:

- You go to Apify
- Get a free trial
- Go to their Google Maps Scraper
- Scroll down and select the option where you can enter Google Maps URLs
- Go to ChatGPT and ask it to create a CSV with the search URLs for the niches you're looking for and the cities you are targeting
- Download the CSV and copy paste the values into the Apify actor
- Run the actor with a certain dollar amount as a limit (optional, you can also just blast the $5 free trial credit away)
- Let it run
- Click on "Export"
- Select "All fields" in the export pop up window
- Take the CSV it gives you and run it through my GPT to get a CSV that you can import into your CRM to start dialing.

The GPT I built is going to take in all the data from Apify and actually interpret it for you so you can dial with actual context to the Google Maps profile you exported.

You can get the GPT by following and DMing me. I'll send the link manually. So please don't freak out if I don't respond within seconds.

CUSTOM FIELDS 9
Google Rating	4.9
Google Reviews	361
Google Category	Laser hair removal service
GBP Claimed?	No
GBP Rank	11
GBP Completeness Score	80
GBP Review Strength	98
GBP Ranking Readiness	93
GBP Quick Wins	Claim profile

The Apify Scraper + GPT

<https://console.apify.com/actors/nwua9Gu5YrADL7ZDj/input>

<https://chatgpt.com/g/g-68a44b0d71d8819186a32f7885bff77d-cold-call-briefs-ai>

The Prompt

For getting the Google Maps URLs in the cities you're looking for:

Give me a CSV with the Google Maps URLs for dentists in the top 25 cities in the UK that have between 100k and 1M people in population size.

For getting the JSON analyzed and your CSV for your CRM/dialing list:

Here's a JSON scrape, make the Close CSV.

feed the JSON file from Apify

The Filters

- Make sure you only have the categories in your CSV by filtering out the category name itself.
- Then you want to make sure that you call businesses that are not on the last page by filtering their ranking to whatever you think is good. I filter for ranks between 5 and 30.
- Make sure that their profile isn't claimed yet. Those are pretty much easy wins.

The Script

*Hey there this is Can with profresults, how are ya doing?

Awesome.

Reason I am calling is... I I wanted to quickly find out if you guys are currently looking to improve your google maps profile... to get up in the rankings.

Alright, sounds good.

Because I was just checking it out and you guys are currently on RANK XYZ

AND... looking at the rest of your profile, it seems pretty solid. There are like a couple quick wins that you can set up this evening to get that boosted like within the next 2-3 weeks.

Actually I wanted to offer you a video showing where I can go over your specific profile and show what needs fixing if you'd be interested.

'Perfect.'

*What's your best email address to send the video to?

Perfect, thanks. Let me get that video recorded and sent over to you today.

August 19 - The Brutal Reality Of The Business Flywheel

-We overestimate short term and underestimate long term.

You always need food the most when you're hungry but obviously you should be hunting and gathering when you're not hungry.

-400. TT example - November -> August, 35. IG - maybe 40. Hours -> output

August 18 - Cold Calls Shenanigans with Can

- After every day the plan is to review / analyze / evaluate
- this is the way to improve
- Get to 300-400 dials before you draw conclusions

August 14 - Burning Build Your Business Questions

Whenever you ask for questions you get a few ultra vague, almost perfunctory questions. But some will be really solid and ALL will be revealing what your audience thinks and feels and struggles with.

This is why sales is mostly centered around questions. Discovery stuff. We need to know what is going on in their mind and in their life and in this stage of their life.

and maybe after how to land our first client with no track record

You're always going to think that a LITTLE bit more experience and track record and proof would make the difference.

It won't.

They just have to believe that you are the solution to their problem.

In order to make them believe this you project confidence and competence.

In order to be able to project this you first fail a fuckton of times.

My client asked me if I can improve his Google Ranking. He owns a pet clinic in the USA. The thing is, he has all services set up lot of photos, lots of reviews, the same amount as the ones in the top 10, and he is ranked 27 on Google. How should I improve it? Any tips?

Let's use this as an example.

Couple things.

- 1) If the client ranks 27 and he asks you if you can do better, the answer is YES. Because the odds of the other 26 people having someone obsessed with ranking? Is borderline zero.

You are this someone. Doesn't really matter what they pay you in the beginning. You're just obsessed with getting some results for your client.

- 2) this is a shit question because I can't give you any suggestions because I know fuck-all. It's a you question.

How do you GET clients when you HAVE NO CLIENTS?

I have some projects to show leads, but they want actual clients to reach out to.

I always explain to them that I know exactly what to do, what to change when the time comes, and how I have experience by running them for myself.

Is there a certain script that we can use to ease their concern? Or something we should do to prevent this from happening?

I understand that there is the lesson "Start out with a bang" and whilst using the great examples given and providing case studies, the lead wants to literally reach out to people that I have directly worked with.

If you could help me out with this, that would be incredibly helpful, Thank you professor.

The problem is that you're not convincing them of your competence and confidence at the same time. Which leads them to question your credentials. And then you end up with retarded shit like them asking: cAn i tAlK tO sOmE oF yOuR oThEr cLiEntS?

You know how many times I've heard that in the past 5 years in my own sales calls?

ZERO. Not once.

The problem is that this has become a thing for you and now you have started believing it's a thing. But it's not. It's only a thing for YOU. And I know what you're thinking right now.

Let me do magic.

You're thinking:

"Well, in my part of the world... it's different!"

In my niche, in my country, in my time, in my whatever-the-fuck-it-is, it's different.

It

Is

Not.

It's a YOU thing.

If you focus on being competent and projecting competence by telling them: 'in your shoes, I would change X, Y and Z, this would get you the result you're looking for'

You will eventually break through this annoying tendency of prospects to ask you for a CV and a bloodsample and 17 different client testimonials and their home address and a personal interview with all 17.

If you go to the hospital and you talk to the surgeon and the guy seems solid... do you ask him if you can talk to his last 7 patients?

Fuck. No.

how to come up with unlimited reels ideas to keep blasting more and more

This is actually quite easy. You walk around and you decide that you'll record a reel before you go back home. Maybe even two. But at least one. And then you start thinking: 'if I was running a local law firm and I wanted more clients... what questions would I be asking myself?'.

But mainly - it's just you walking around and deciding: "we're going to make a reel, brain. So better step up. And figure this the f out."

How are you going to make product look the best and outstanding if you don't know, which parameters make it outstanding?

I began BIAB for one simple reason.

This is business on EASY MODE. I recommend doing business on EASY MODE. It's stupid, especially if you're starting out, to do things on HARD MODE or NIGHTMARE MODE.

Easy mode because we're targeting people that don't know anything about marketing and we're selling something that is SO EASY to sell. Because people are already buying it anyway.

We only have to win against people that also DON'T KNOW ANYTHING about marketing.

Local biz owner? Knows nothing about marketing. Go talk to these people and that will prove everything I'm telling you.

The man spent all of his skillpoints on dentistry or petcare or plumbing or lawyering or whatever the hell he does.

So let's say it's a painter. We ONLY have to beat other painters. Not other marketers, not other world class sales people. Other painters.

You don't have to be worldclass or amazing or outstanding or genius or brilliant. You really, truly, don't.

Hey Arno, had a lead that I sent the loom offer to.

She said she was interested in collaborating, we emailed back and for a bit and then like magic - she ghosted...

But this isn't like any other braindead question, I used some initiative, found her number and gave her a call.

She answered, I told her who I was and she exclaimed "Oh it's Ryan, I'm so sorry I just got back from holiday and haven't had time to get back to you. But don't worry I really liked your stuff and have already decided I'm working with you and no one else".

She told me she was swamped with work since coming back but would have a look at the loom again and get back to me at the end of the day and if not then, in a couple days.

That being said, it's now been a couple days and I want a way of following up with her without coming across as needy and ruining a basically complete sale.

Business, like a lot of things is a lot like dating.

Strong parallels. One of the commonalities is that we don't exchange long messages and enormous amounts of data over email if we don't know them. Because that won't make sense.

Texting is for logistics. This is a dating principle.

It is also a business principle.

Texting = figuring out when and where the date will be.
In business terms = when will we call or meet?

Hey Chat, let me know if y'all had a similar experience.

I am working with a client that seemed to be alright. They said they wanted a discount, so I gave them a little discount. (Should not have done that).

Now coming closer to 2 days before her event, she is trying to add in more and more, after she paid everything that we originally agreed on. These extra things, she keeps adding in cost more and more on my end. Then when I tell her, "Hey, you know we just talked about this not being included, it is just going to be this much." Now she is mad, and talking about hidden fees, and "I am not happy." she is mad, and talking about "Your not even going to give me a discount for all of this?"

I replied, "I already gave you a discount." Over the phone during our discovery call they mentioned they would provide the bar for us to use. It was recorded in my notes, and I even explicitly stated that twice clearly in the email proposal I sent her. Then she is saying, that I said I would provide the bar. Then, when I ask her if she has the bar at all. She says she has the bar, but "Doesn't know where it is."

How do you guys deal with clients like this. PS my service is catering for mobile bars.

It's going to be a nibbler problem. I already know. But let's keep reading.

It is always a she. Every single customer problem I see on here is a she.

At some point you start picking up on patterns. Maybe that's why I'm racist as well. Who knows?

Anyway - let's define a nibbler first.

Nibblers always agree to something and then they want a little bit more. And a little bit more. And a little bit more.

And when you tell them NO they chimp out.

You can not outnibble a nibbler. It's like trying to out-willpower a toddler. A toddler has one goal in life. And that goal switches a lot. You, an adult, have 417 goals in life. You will lose to the 1 goal little man or little woman if you play his or her game.

You will lose to the nibbler if you fall into the nibbler frame.

So the right response is: 'No, we didn't agree on this. I can do it, it'd be $XXX more. Would you like to do that?'

She's going to chimp. You wait it out. And then you say:

"Yes, I understand. We agreed on XYZ. You can check the documents. Anyway, I can do it but it'd be XXX MORE. Would you like to do that?"

You circle back and you do not allow the nibbler to nibble at your stuff.

When looking at a business, what are the questions you ask or things you look at to determine if you should offer google ads or meta ads?

If it's a business where clients are actively looking online to solve a problem? It's going to be Google ads.

Plumber, lawyer, baker, whatever.

If its a business where clients are not necessarily looking online to solve a problem (yet), it's going to be Meta ads.

Personal trainer, marketing agency.

August 13 - How To Conduct A Decent Team Meeting

- Ilango:

Microsoft Clarity to figure out where the leads are coming from, how they interact with the site.

- Arno

- Onboarding procedure done, I'll dump it in Important Links. This will make sure that the next client that we onboard can be onboarded by either one of us.

- We'll be testing the full Google Ads starting procedure with Construction client

- Will be documenting the full Google My Business procedure for painter client so we can implement it for construction client

- Ad is almost ready to rock. I expect we'll start running it next week. Probably makes sense to put together a script for the other two products that we sell.

TODAY

€3,640 today •

€130.00 today • €560.00 yesterday

Can:

Updates

- form changed

- cold calls made
 - Have action items to increase pick-up rate
- will blast just the current domains to the shadow realm
 - -> 3000 emails per day

Questions/Notes for myself

- Where do I log in to see results we get for clients?
 - I want to create extra landing pages for case studies so I can send them to prospects.

-> Use the wix account for the touristy people (france)

-> Get before and after on Wix.

- Find a place for SOPs
 - Let's just use Google Drive and add the SOP docs in there.

->

- When are we planning to go live with our own Meta Ads?
 - Need landing page copy from Arno for GMB offer

ACTION POINTS:

- ☐ Can sets up email campaigns to blast them into the shadow realm
- ☒ ~~Can gives Hango access to websites~~
- ☒ ~~Hango adds microsoft clarity (also added google analytics, because why not)~~
- ☒ ~~Hango adds Google ads code to website for Godaddy painter people~~
- ☐ Arno will get his shit together and actually write daily newsletters like a functioning human being would
- ☐ Arno prepares everything to get the ads to start running next week for GMB product
- ☐ Arno will send landing page copy to Can

August 12 - How To Fix Someone's Google Business Profile LIVE

Actual client example of a Google Business Profile and how we'll fix it.

Can was right as well. Here's the Services section for the high ranking person:

They're actually giving Google enough material to rank them.

You have to understand - Google ranks billions of websites. So they need to have some sort of system / algo / automated thingie to rank shit. And they will tell you that they look at stuff manually.

They obviously can't.

You need to give them as much material to work with as humanly possible.

When it comes to client work I see a lot of you ask clients to send you "412 pieces of data. Send me 40 pictures, get me 30 reviews and send me 47 high def pictures of your logo"

The issue is that your client doesn't want to do any of that. We're paid to help them out. We're not paid to give them more work.

August 11 - Ask me anything / support call

Let's go through your questions.

August 7 - How To Write A Killer Ad

These calls are all about showing you how the sausage is made. What goes on behind the scenes.

So I'm making an ad for the Google My Business stuff. Local businesses ranking on Google. One of the entry offers, basically.

So what I'm doing is not optimal or ideal. I do this so you can do a better job.

Let's see if I can find a way to share some of this stuff.

I've said this a couple time: in screenwriting and storytelling we must strive to SHOW instead of TELL.

So I'm recording a video that I'm planning to promote on YouTube, Instagram, Facebook. So it's going to be a video ad. Which means it has to have a couple components:

- 1) Stop the scroll
- 2) Determine viewing audience so you catch the right people
- 3) Problem
- 4) Agitate
- 5) Solution
- 6) CTA (Call to Action)

You can write out the script from here, but mainly it's just me showing them

You think reality is X

Actually reality is Y

Here's proof:

Why is reality Y when you think it's X?

—at this point the vast majority of people fuck up—

You lay it out in layman's terms... and then

You give them a CALL TO ACTION

August 6 - How To Solve Business Problems In Real Time

Arno notes

Business is basically a never ending puzzle or stream of problems that you're supposed to solve. It never ends and that's awesome.

Two things about problems:

1) you are most likely the problem. In almost every problem, it's you.

That's awesome because if you are the problem then you have control over the solution. If you would NOT be the problem the solution would be fully out of your control.

2) already done

Every single problem you're about to experience has already been experienced by thousands (at least) of people and it has also already been solved by thousands (at least) of people.

That's awesome because any obstacle you're about to face is therefore solvable.

Meeting subjects:

CAN

1) Deliverability on cold emails are weird. Trying to pin it down to fix it.

2) I set up a cold call sheet. Will dial 1000 phone numbers, get a script down and some numbers before presenting to students.

3) we should set up some URL redirects for the old PR website.

Checked the numbers for newsletter signups since we launched and they are at 2 signups per day compared to 6 per day before (5 day average)

Bonus points:

- Predictive dialing
- Create one landing page per service
- Script

Cold Call Script

1. Intro
2. Hook
3. Pain
4. Commitment
5. Asking for meeting
6. Post meeting sell

Intro

Hey there, this is Can from ProfResults.

I'm calling because I helped a few roofers like yours get to the top spot in Google to get more jobs.

Do you have a minute to talk about this?

Hook

Great, my name is Can and I'm calling with ProfResults.

I help home service companies like yours fill their calendars with new customers by using Google.

Usually these companies work with us is because:

1. no marketing system
2. marketing system but unqualified leads

Which of these—if any—resonates the most with your current situation?

Pain

Qualify the prospect on why.

Commitment

What would it look like for you if we could actually solve these problems?

Ask for meeting

I'd actually like to know more about your company.

I'm pretty confident we can help you with this.

How does tomorrow at 11AM or 12PM eastern work for you?

Post meeting sell

Before I hang up:

I have a few calls scheduled that day so just to make sure we get the most out of our time, I wanted to ask a few questions.

Does that work for you?

Budget

- # of employees
- Revenue?
- LTV of a client

Need

- How immediate is this problem?

Timing

- how soon are you planning to solve this?

ARNO

- 1) Onboarding procedure new client(s), remove Arno time as bottleneck
- 2) Content creation (both newsletters and videos)
- 3) Finish up ad (might be subject for tomorrow's call)

ACTION POINTS

- ☐ start warming up the new .com domains
- ☐ Buy 10 (or so) .NL domains to hook up to the automated email thingie
- ☐ Start testing the script for cold calls etc
- ☐ Hook up Google Search Console -
- ☐ Talk about Cold email content setup for TRW and if that can be done in some way
- ☐ write an SOP on how to get going on a new client account (both GMB and Ads)
- ☐ write a cache of newsletters and videos so Ilango can turn it into carousels and blogs

So the plan is to have 3 different products/services for now. They will serve as an entry level offer so we can upsell them on the value ladder. And the plan is to make an ad for each one. So we can send traffic and see which one converts best.

We could make a nice picture of this but let me describe first.

When you just start out, roughly 80-95% of your time is supposed to go into getting the flywheel going when it comes to getting clients. This is possible because you have fuck-all to do.

In the beginning, if there's no hungry crowd in front of your door, it is up to you to create and manifest that hungry crowd.

Once you have them, you can start spending time on SOPs and staff and management and fulfillment. But if there is NOTHING to fulfill... why are we even worried about that?

Onboarding email that ProfResults uses right now

hi <NAME>,

Four things to get us all started:

1) If you don't have a Google Ads account yet, could you guys create one and give us access? Here's the steps:

Step 1: Open the account

Go to ads.google.com -> "Start Now."

Step 2: Set up the account Put in business name and website.

Skip the "Smart Campaign" setup if prompted. Choose "Create an account without a campaign" in the advanced options.

Enter billing information (currency, country, and payment method).

In terms of billing: nothing will happen until we start running campaigns.

Step 3: Share account access

After the account is created, go to Tools & Settings > Access and security in Google Ads.

Click the "+" button to add a user.

Enter arno@profresults.com

Select "Admin" access to allow us full management control.

2) Can you give us access to the Google My Business Profile as well?

- Just login to <https://business.google.com/locations>

- Click on the three dots icon and then click on Business Profile Settings

- Go to people+access and Click +Add

- Give access to arno@profresults.com

3) Do you happen to have an example of the ad you're running on Yelp and the other platform? The ones you're using now to get leads.

4) Did you guys build the website you're using now or did someone build that for you? If you built it - can you grant access to that as well?

We're obviously not going to change things before we inform you and get the green light, just making sure that we're set up and everything moves nice and smooth once we're ready to get cracking with everything.

Thanks in advance!

Arno

August 5 - How To Record A VSL Like A G

Every line in the VSL needs to be reviewed through the lens of:

“who cares?”

If you end up going 3 lines in a row not being able to answer that question? You're cooked. Deep fried. Burned to a crisp. Like a Vietnamese napalm victim. Absolutely obliterated.

So let's avoid the napalm fate, shall we?

- 1) Hey, my name is Arno and together with my team I run Prof Results
- 2) If you're a local business owner and you're trying to grow your company and reach more people... you're in the right place
- 3) We help company owners like you use the Internet to reach local clients, fill your calendars and become the go-to business for whatever you're selling.
- 4) If you're already doing well and you want to do even better... we're probably a great match.
- 5) Check out this page for everything we offer and if you like what you're seeing - book a call and let's see if we're a good match!

<https://youtu.be/piqHdyl0P4o>

Dan Kennedy got hired for Weightwatchers. As the marketing guy. He got clients for them. And the CEO one day asked Dan to come into the office. CEO says: “Dan, I've been going over the books and something weird is going on.”

So Dan is thinking: did I mess up the expense reports, did I evade some taxes?

CEO says: "I found out that I am the second best paid person in this company. You know who the best paid person is?"

Dan understands that he's the best paid person. So he goes through this convo and the CEO at some point says: "How do you explain this? I'm the CEO! I should be the best paid person"

And Dan says: "You know how to do everything in this company except do ONE thing. And that's why I'm the best paid person. And the one thing? GET A CLIENT"

August 4 - How To Write Disgustingly Good Website Copy For Yourself And For Clients

So, let's talk about copy.

Copy is nothing more and nothing less than telepathy. It really is. I wrote a tweet about this a long time ago and it did well. And I shamelessly stole it from Stephen King. Credit where credit is due.

King talks about writing being telepathy.

When I describe a scene through writing something in your mind lights up. And you think about it. It's up to you as the writer to figure out what the reader needs and what they don't need.

There's a passage in Strunk + White's book Elements of Style. And they have the advice of "omit needless words". But also, they say that you're supposed to throw the reader a lifeline. A vest. Or one of those round things. You don't throw them 80feet of reep and a piano and an anchor and a bedroom so he can change into something comfortable.

What does this have to do with websites?

EVERYTHING.

What our job is, is to put ourselves in the shoes of a prospect. And this is actually much easier than you might initially believe.

Apparently, if you're hovering around 80IQ it's really hard to put yourself into someone else's shoes. Because intellectually, you can barely fill your own shoes.

You can pretend to be someone else. So your mission - should you choose to accept it - is to put yourself in the prospect's shoes.

Headline has to make sense, subhead has to make sense, from a consumer perspective.

When we get to our offering I'd like you to think about this in a certain light.

Once upon a time I did quite a bit of public speaking. And when you start out they usually book you for 'break-out-sessions'

So the attendants get option A/B/C.

And as a speaker you would prefer your break-out-session to be packed. And mine was always packed.

Not because I'm necessarily an amazing speaker. But because the headlines that I wrote were rocksolid and the headlines of other speakers are complete shit.

I'd be using something like: "How To Generate 5 Leads / Week From Google Ads" and I'd be competing against: "The pros and cons of using aluminum alloy in residential construction"

So when we're offering shit it makes sense to make the headlines sexy.

Right now we're basically offering three things.

Google Ads = Use Ads To Get To The Top Of Google In 1 Day

Meta Ads = Use Instagram To Reach EVERY Local Client

Google Business Profile = Reach Number 1 On Google For Free

If we're doing these three things it makes sense to come up with three catchy headlines or descriptions for these things so someone wants to click on it and gets excited about seeing this.

Basically we're alluding to the end result that they're getting.

So let's say I'm doing a Construction Company in a certain area and I want to run Google Ads to the page in the near future.

If it's construction we KNOW for a fact that it's a local business. So if this is Birmingham we probably say:

<company> - Your Birmingham Construction Company.

As a headline.

Why?

Because:

- 1) The searcher wants to verify right away: 'is this for me, and is this in my area?'
- 2) The Google spider wants to make sure that you're offering visitors / clickers the best experience.

Two examples: Prof Results + Construction company

August 3rd - Crunching Numbers

Lessons after crunching the numbers:

Response rate was generally pretty damn low. We're talking less than 1% response rates (excluding all the automated responses you usually get with local businesses or info@ email addresses).

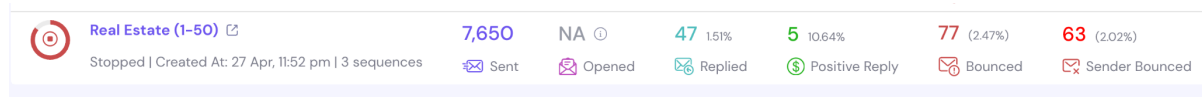

That is pretty bad in itself and usually (USUALLY) means that you are landing in spam.

But because this entire cold email wizardry thing is not that simple at all times, we had to dig deeper into why and how that can even be the case for someone as smart as me.

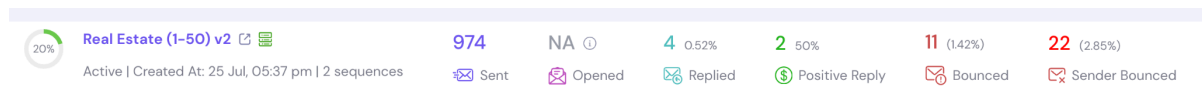

And after actually digging deeper, we came up with a hypothesis:

- we compared the old real estate campaign to the new one and had two very very different results.

V1:

V2:

While v1 had both amazing response and positive response rates, v2 was barely getting any responses at all... which is very interesting.

I thought, we used roughly the same prospect list. But upon further analysis I found that:

1. V2 had leadswift as the prospect data source
2. and v1 had used ListKit.

The major difference between these two data-sources is:

ListKit has the personal business email addresses of the people I was trying to target — which were the owners and decision-makers of the real estate agencies that fit my ICP (ideal customer profile).

- Real estate agency
- 1-50 employees
- Based in the US

WHILE the Leadswift prospects were simply scraped off of Google Maps.

Now... this in itself doesn't immediately mean that Leadswift is absolute dogshit.

There is a place and time for using Google Maps data over ListKit's highly precise database.

When would you use Leadswift over ListKit?

- companies most likely not registered with LinkedIn
- extremely small businesses
- doctors

In this case, our hypothesis of the prospect list being at fault for our low response rates has proven to be the most likely scenario.

Because in direct comparison, the only difference between the two real estate campaigns were the prospect lists.

So going forward, we'll do the following:

- ☐ Get more email addresses of decision-makers at real estate agencies
- ☐ Do the same for the other campaigns as well
- ☐ Monitor the MAIN KPI FOR COLD EMAIL
- ☐ Launch new script split-tests

D
Efficiency (contacts/lead)
	414

If possible, you'd want to analyze and track not only how many contacts you need to reach out to to get a lead.

You'd also want to know how many contacts you need to reach out to to BOOK A MEETING.

BUT: If you are doing this manually, and you are limited in your ability to blast your offer into the universe, tracking the latter will be infinitely harder because you'll need to ram more volume to get a meeting booked than to just get a positive response.

Now WHY is this the case?

-> A positive response always comes before a meeting is booked.

<https://www.figma.com/board/el84C4TSAcEco5JtOvJABK/BYB-Live-%E2%80%94-Figma-Pyramid-Scheme?node-id=0-1&p=f&t=XGWHSpUAIxFwIUeq-0>

Interesting Questions:

What do you think about newsletters instead of 3 follow-ups?

With cold outreach, what you are doing is INTERRUPTING people.

You are kind of not wanted.

Usually.

Usually meaning: less than 3% of the people you are emailing to don't need your offer right now.

Now, if you were to take the 97% that will guaranteed not respond to your email and you put them into your newsletter, you'll experience the following:

- You'll send out a newsletter
- Open rates will be terrible
- No one will interact or click on links
- People will start marking your emails as spam
- Block your domain
- And let EVERY SINGLE SERVER ON GOD'S GREEN EARTH know that.....
- You are spamming them.

Bam. COOKED DOMAIN. Get a new one.

July 31 - Arno - How To Record A Killer Video / VSL

Today's topic. After the Turk absolutely obliterated the live schedule like a maniac.

Let's uncover the formula. Here's an example:

https://youtu.be/kYjq9K-LDA0?si=2tci7B-32u_QtifG

This formula can go for Looms, VSLs, salesletters, sales presentations, you name it.

Step 1: HOOK

First thing we do in the VSL (and you'll notice this is very similar to every and any kind of selling) is that we open with a hook. A reason for them to pay attention.

We immediately want to tell them: YES, YOU'RE IN THE RIGHT PLACE AND I'M THE WIZARD.

STEP 2: PROBLEM

If you X, then you Y.

STEP 3: AGITATE THE PROBLEM

But... there's a but! Because there's always a but.

Why is this hard to do?

STEP 4: NAME AND DISQUALIFY OTHER SOLUTIONS

You can fix it doing this... but then there's that.

You can fix it doing X... but then there's Y.

STEP 5: SOLUTION

And that's why we have the amazing XYZ.

It has this amazing thing and that amazing thing. Here's how you do it

STEP 6: CALL TO ACTION

You can do all of this yourself, do X and Y and Z... but we can also do it for you.

Here's what you do right now:

Make the offer

STEP 7: FUTURE PACING

This cool thing is what is going to happen in the future.

I'll record one of those for the GBP stuff. So you can see this in action. And I'll probably obsess over it and make sure it's pErFeCt.

FAQ

1. Initial Skepticism (First 30 seconds)

"10-50 new clients sounds too good to be true - what's the catch?"

- We're only working with people that we know we can get results for. Therefore only businesses that have what it takes to get these kind of results will be offered our core offer you see on this website.
- This is why we can guarantee these results.

2. Proof & Credibility (Early conversation)

"Can you show me examples of other businesses like mine that you've helped?"

- Yes, feel free to take a look at our case studies.

3. Understanding the Process (Mid-conversation)

"What exactly are you going to do for my business?"

- We are going to build a website that converts, get visitors to see it and make sure that the people that actually reach out to you are being screened first before they reach your inbox.

"How long does it take to start seeing results?"

- The paid trial is designed to give you enough results to make an informed decision whether you want to continue after the initial 30-day period.

"Will this work in my specific area/market?"

- We will only offer you this if we are 100% sure that we can get you results. We do NOT want to hand out refunds just for the sake of getting new clients. So yes, if we offer you to collaborate, you can rest assured that this will work for your specific market.

4. Financial Concerns (When price comes up)

"How much is this going to cost me upfront?"

- The paid trial costs $750 USD one-time upfront. No commitment, no retainers, no 12 month contract. You actively have to tell us that you want to continue a week before the trial ends so that we can offer you a retainer model, which you can still cancel on a monthly basis.

"What if I can't afford the ad spend on top of your fees?"

- Then this unfortunately is not for you right now. We still have offers to scale your business to the point where you can afford our main offer displayed on this website. Feel free to reach out via the form below to learn more.

"How do I know I'll get my money back if it doesn't work?"

- This is a registered company in the EU. You are working with professionals that are not really too interested in getting banned by payment processors. So when you need or want a refund, you just hit us up and we'll scoot the money back over to you.

5. Time & Effort Investment (Implementation phase)

"How much of my time is this going to require?"

- Barely anything. You just do what you do best: turn phone calls into customers.

"Do I need to learn how to do any of this technical stuff?"

- No you absolutely don't have to do ANY of the technical. This is why we have a team of trained professionals so you don't need to lift a finger.

6. Risk & Commitment (Decision time)

"What if this doesn't work for my type of business?"

- We make sure that we can deliver these results for your exact business because we have zero interest in refunding clients and making a bad name for ourselves. So you're in good hands as soon as we offer you the paid trial.

"How long am I locked into this contract?"

- There is absolutely zero commitment with our offer. The paid trial doesn't renew, meaning you only pay one time upfront to get 30 days of service and results. Then, a week prior to the end of the trial, you'll be offered to renew and jump on the retainer. The retainer itself is also cancellable on a monthly basis. Just hit us up and we'll cancel the subscription.

"What happens if I want to cancel?"

- Just contact us directly and we'll make sure to handle it the same day.

7. Final Hesitation (Before closing)

"Can I think about it and get back to you?"

- Best to fill out the form so we even know that you are interested and in the best case we'll send you some of our best materials that will show you how it is like to work with us.

"Should I talk to my spouse/business partner first?"

- Come on now, just fill out the form.

July 30 - How To Rank At The Top Of Google Maps

Arno's top secret checklist for GBP tings.

I solemnly swear, tomorrow (which is today by the time you see this) I will give you the definitive script to fix ANY Google Business Status even if it's 1000% complete.

You will be able to record a loom for a business profile that I have done myself and that I have slaved over for 1000 years, and your Loom will still be applicable.

https://docs.google.com/document/d/1_bnYt5cnh5T_eKHE6E1KmJF5D9UDA0NQwazhfEzvSmY/edit?usp=sharing

Regular SEO is ALL ABOUT linkbuilding. That's what they do, that's their bread and butter. Content + linkbuilding = high ranking.

But you're working with a local business. Google has this issue where Kathy's bakery is not going to get 417 links from anyone. They still have to rank it. So they figured out an algo that does this for them. Which prioritizes an active business owner, a complete business profile and a website that is congruent with whatever they say on their profile.

Could you give a little help on what to do after we send over the loom videos?

I'm guessing you've not got a concrete definitive plan right now, but a general idea would be really helpful.

Answer

CarlosOG

quick question: can you talk a bit on pricing? How do you decide what to charge for each service? I'm saying this because I would like to start charging 1k+ per service but I'm seeing my prospects find 700+ services already expensive.

For example, I just got a new client that I charged 700 for a new website + 2 weeks of meta ads and she said she had to think because it was a considerable amount for her. Thankfully she accepted when I told her I would stay with her until she gets new clients that cover her ROI.

—> There is one major problem with this situation: You are talking to broke people.

Action items for Carlos:

- Blast more volume
- Copy the ProfResults offer in its structure
- Keep blasting more

ProfResults offer:

I'll get you {{quantifiable number}} of customers/clients per month for your {{niche}} business, or you don't pay.

- You don't pay upfront and only pay at the end of the month after we have achieved the quantifiable results
- Pay per result / revenue share

Action Stipulations

- reply back within 1 workday
- call up leads within 30 minutes

State Stipulations

- at least 5 case studies
- at least 50 Google Reviews
- Solid landing page with on-site SEO
- Sales assets to inform the customer

Volume on Email: 2 Options

1. Get a few inboxes, connect them to GMASS. Run.
2. Get a fuckton of inboxes, connect them to Smartlead, and follow my lead.

July 29 - Why You Should Absolutely Blast The Top Of Funnel

(ARNO)manual emails

(ARNO)ads (let's say $20/day)

(ARNO)reels

(ARNO)promoting reels

(ARNO)newsletter

(ARNO)twitter

(CAN) auto emails

(CAN) landing pages

(CAN) Cold calling

(keep in mind that we're called ProfResults. Not ProfVolume)

So EVERYTHING starts with top of funnel. Let me give you an example MOST of you will understand.

This is the HAWK TUAH lady.

Hawk tuah lady went mega-viral. And then she monetized it. With a mediocre podcast (mediocre to normie standards, it was actually actively brainmeltingly horrendous) and then she tried merch and then she launched a memecoin and then she did what every single female crypto influencer has ever done.

She scammed every single one of her retarded followers and then she said: 'i was scammed. I didn't know. No one could have predicted this. This is unprecedented. I'm so sorry. I feel your pain. I am in pain. Psychologically.'

What's the lesson from Hawk Tuah lady?

This lady has no talent. None. She also, if we're talking about IQ, roughly, is anywhere between 80-90. You can tell by behavior and vocabulary.

And yet. And yet. She is outperforming you to the absolute max. She might even be outperforming me. For now. It won't take long, but for now she might be beating me.

Why is this?

Because her top of funnel is absolutely overflowing.

Her cup overfloweth.

So what we're trying to do here is make your cup overflow(eth). The eth is optional.

ARNO's STUFF

In terms of 'your cup overfloweth' - for anything to overflow you have to put in MAXIMUM EFFORT over a prolonged period of time first.

So let's say you blast at minimum:

- 1 newsletter
- 1 reel
- 1 ad ($20/ad)
- 1 shilling tweet
- 15 manual emails

EVERY
DAY.

MEANING:

EVERY

DAY.

Over at least 2 weeks.

What would happen?

What would happen, theoretically is that your top of funnel will get absolutely swarmed like a blonde girl at an average Indian beach.

If you're a white woman listening to this, don't go to the beach in India. Please. Maybe, just don't go to India. Or Pakistan. Or anywhere close.

But if your funnel is barren, better put it on that Indian beach ASAP.

So the challenge would basically be to do the above - maybe excluding the $20/day ad- but everything else.

You don't skip a day, you just keep blasting.

Let's do that and absolutely MOG the top of funnel for your offer.

Can's Stuff

- (CAN) Auto emails
 - we're blasting v1
 - to find out which script works best
 - And then we're gonna keep doing what works. And stop doing what doesn't work.
- (CAN) Cold calling
 - BLAST
 - Script something out
 - Dial 50-60 a day
- (CAN) LinkedIn
 - 6-digit 2FA code waiting
- (CAN) Landing pages
 - do this on the live calls

Student Questions:

Giovanni

Can you explain these numbers a bit.

What will you be offering in the cold call, will you be trying to get them to agree to the loom video. @

Can | BM Chief Strategy Officer

Ryan Tait

If we don't run ads, should we still do a newsletter?

An idea could be to shovel any positive responses to the loom offer into a newsletter.

From there we can manually create a list of leads.

GMB checklist for fulfilling

July 28 - How To Solve Every Business Problem In Existence In One Easy Step

So, was talking to Can/Cun while he was in Amsterdam and we basically decided to do these calls more in a format where you look in while we're having a private meeting.

So we figure out what we're supposed to do and you basically see us figuring it out as if you're figuring it out. And you can follow along.

Right now we're still mostly talking to you guys. I would prefer it if we did like 80% work and talking amongst us and then the remaining 20% is student questions at the end.

Can said at some point: "I'm starting to understand on a deep cellular Turkish level that every single business problem can be solved by doing more volume."

If you optimize for conversion rates you might overoptimize for that metric. In a business we're always optimizing for the real metric. Which is profit. And to an extent it's turnover.

I know a fuckton of people proud of having a 93% closing rate on their salescalls.

If you have 93% closing rate you're an eedyat. You're only talking to dudes that are sold ANYWAY. That's not sales. That's just order taking.

What you should be doing is get on WAYYYYYYYY more calls.

Absolute number = the number you can actually pay rent with. The real number. Not compared to something else. Just reality.

Poetic licence = the freedom to depart from the facts of a matter or from the conventional rules of language when speaking or writing in order to create an effect.

So the perfect business setup is leading with a self liquidating offer. Meaning - I run ads and people buy my stuff and then I upsell them. But just based on the FIRST transaction alone... I break even. Breakeven meaning = I neither lose money nor make money. I'm at 0.

Now, if you're retarded you'll say: 'well, that makes no sense, I made no money'. This is why almost everyone fails in business.

If I acquire a customer at zero cost every upsell, every future transaction is pure profit.

In the old days if you wanted to run an offer on television, let's say TellSell. You couldn't get on there without at least three upsells. After a bit they could only make it work if it was a subscription offer.

Tomorrow: GBP checklist + tackling the order of things

July 25 - How To Nail The Deliverable And Wow The Client

So basically, what we've done (and if you haven't attended the previous calls, might be good to watch them), is we've figured out an outreach message and we're starting to send out outreach.

By the way - I propose I start sending 15 emails a day starting let's say Monday and on Fridays we can compare responses and notes and shit.

Appararently, we're sending 750 automated emails a day. If I send 15 a day... I should lose. But we'll see. Because I'm me. And Can is Can but you pronounce it Cun. Like run.

Now that we're ready to send shit to prospects we'll eventually get a dude that says: 'sure, send it my way'.

And then, we have to send something.

Every doctor has a first patient. And they've been training for 3 years, 4 years, 6 years, 8 years... but every doctor cuts into a dude or dudette for the first time. And they're scared as shit and they don't TELL the patient.

What I see a lot is that people are intimidated by the prospect of doing something for someone else for the first time. So let's say you have no clue how a Google Business Profile works. How the back end looks. What is supposed to be in there? How do you win?

There's a reason why I really like the saying: "in the land of the blind, the one-eyed man is King".

And the reason is that it's true. And it's true so much you aren't even paying attention to it anymore.

80% AT LEAST of people in every business category is supremely and totally incompetent.

So if you're selling to Bill the Chiropractor. And Bill is interested in getting his GBP up there in the rankings. Bill is ranking number 412 now. You take a quick look, man has 4 pictures, no reviews, no address, no opening times, no services listed.

You look at the number 1-3. And they have a very different looking profile.

You conclude - rightfully so- after about 20 minutes MAX of research... that it probably makes sense to complete Bill's profile. Because apparently, profiles that have some care put into them... score better.

This is all you need.

Bill has invested 0 minutes into thinking about improving GBP. This also goes for Google ads. Meta ads. Billboard ads. Whatever you sell. Video content. Growing on Instagram.

If you spend 20 minutes on something. And someone else spent 0 minutes on something. How much more -as a multiple- have you invested into this thing.

Yes, correct, it's infinite. INFINITE.

That's a lot.

Like a lot lot.

You can do a great job at the initial small audit that we do. Because we spent 15 minutes thinking about this and they spent 0. Now, let's say you get to do 4 audits this week. Now the fifth one, you're strutting in there like Connor McGregor fully coked up. Confidence? Infinite.

In the beginning - which is NOW- you ONLY have to be good at the audit. People fuck this up all the time. I blame the school system and the Lizard People. And probably David Bowie. Because he was weird.

You convince yourself you have to be able to do EVERYTHING before you start doing ANYTHING. This is not the case.

If you land 4 clients today because you nail the audit... I promise you, heartfelt pinky promise, that we'll take care of you and make sure that you do a great job for them.

Because it's going to be basic stuff. Every. Single. Time.

If you land Walmart today? For their Google Ads needs? You're fucked.

SL: The Google ruse

Hi,

It's Arno.

Google is bamboozling you. And me. I can prove it.

You know how you can Google search: 'business near me'?

So 'restaurant near me'. Or 'hardware store near me'. Or 'plumber near me'.

Once upon a time I assumed Google actually recommended the closest business.

But it doesn't.

I could be standing NEXT to your business, Google '<your type of business> near me' annnnnnnnddddd it's going to recommend a competitor!

I know. It's nuts.

But don't take my word for this. Try it out yourself.

In the next email I'll show you how you can fix some of this stuff. So you actually show up in Google when people are looking for you.

Stay tuned,

Arno

SOP: Handling Responses

Pre-Requisites (The things you need before doing this)

- LinkedIn account (get it verified if you can)
- Loom account (you don't NEED the paid plan, but I'd get it anyway)

Steps after you get a positive response:

1. Find them on LinkedIn
2. Send a connection request saying "I'm {{first_name}}. You just responded to my email about {{offer}}"
3. Loom/Tella and use the script below:

For the Google Business Profile Loom:

Hey FN, I noticed 3 things about your Google Business Profile that are likely hurting your ranking on Google that I wanted to cover in this video.

ONE: You are missing xyz. This is extremely important and you NEED it because all of your competitors have it.

TWO: You have linked the wrong website. Google noticed this and penalized you for it.

THREE: You only have 3 pictures on your profile. Competitors in the top three have at least 30.

I have found out 5 more things that are necessary to fix to get you to the top 3 and I want to invite you to a 15 minute meeting to show you those and give you my offer to fix all of these for a one time payment of $250.

Meaning: worst case, you walk away with the next steps to get more money in. Best case you spend a little and we do it for you within 72h.

How does tomorrow or Tuesday at 10 AM UK time work for you?

Let me know, see you there.

Response Email With Loom

Hey there, here's your video. Just click on the thumbnail to view it.

If you're interested in getting your Google Business Profile to the top three in your local area, let me know how tomorrow or Tuesday at 10 AM works for you.

We'll have your full audit prepared and ready to analyze with you on the call.

July 23 - How to write outreach so good it should be illegal

If people don't respond to your stuff it's mostly a timing issue.

Rough Outline for the calls:

- 5min intro
- 15min Arno and Can review previous bottleneck AND plan to attack new bottleneck
- 15min Can works on the topic of the day
- 15min Arno works on the topic of the day
- 10min Fourth Wall Break = student questions

Having guarantees with stipulations usually makes things more believable. Otherwise it sounds too good to be true. Similar to a 'fair use policy'.

In terms of top of funnel, once you decide WHAT you want to sell, it makes sense to see HOW you'll get traffic.

We have a couple of options

- 1) cold automated email (Can is in charge of this)
- 2) manual outreach (I am in charge of this)
- 3) Social media content
- 4) (social media) ads
- 5) Newsletter

So if we decide on an offer that we're going to push... we need to go all out on all cylinders.

For us, this means that whatever stuff we record and write and post is dedicated to whatever offer we're pushing for now.

Can mentioned this: Loom angle - we're covering that in the next call?**

Next NEXT call - How to leverage LinkedIn to spam the entire Earth**

Let's cover the Loom thing in the next call. Basically 'what do you do when they say 'sure, send it over'.

Arno Writing Outreach Message

AUTOMATED VERSION:

Hi there,

Saw your business in <location>.

Wanted to reach out because I saw a couple things you could do to rank at the top (or near the top) of Google for your business.

Would easily help you reach more clients and it won't even take an hour to do this.

Recorded a video that covers exactly what to do. If you'd like me to send it over - let me know!

Thanks,

Arno

P.S. for the record, there's no cost or obligation.

If Yes

Awesome. I just ran an audit and noticed a couple things that are affecting your rank on Google Maps {{their local area}}.

Want me to send you a 2min video showing how to fix them?

BY THE WAY—IF YOU ARE ANXIOUS, TREMBLING, SHAKING, LITERALLY SWEATING because you MIGHT be landing in spam currently...

THE BEST LITMUS TEST for this is.....

Check if you are getting any automated responses back.

Because if you do—you are fine.

Because you only get automated responses back, if you didn't land in spam or promotion.

July 22 - Let's Talk About Offers

If you miss these calls, go to Business in a Box, scroll allllllllllll the way down, you'll find the recordings there.

Offers - make sure you only start optimizing AFTER you know it's somewhat viable.

Upsells

Cross sells

Down sells

Every story needs things to sell. Usually a store has more than one thing.

Similar to a good restaurant, a store usually doesn't have 47,000 things on the menu. Should you find yourself in a restaurant with 47,000 times AND pictures on the menu... best to stick to things that won't kill you.

You can't fulfil on 47,000 different things.

The first thing we're probably going to develop is a front-end offer. Something that is easy to say yes to, something that is easy to sell, something that will get them easy results.

Let's give one example.

Let's say we optimize a Google Business Profile.

Let's say we charge them $250 dollars.

And we do our thing and they rise in the ranks and they go from spot 19 to spot 5.

You are now a WIZARD. You have performed magic.

So as a business owner, when you actually find a wizard, you want to keep the wizard.

At all costs.

Which is nice because we like to get paid. And wizards get paid.

You need to be the wizard. You just cannot ever believe in wizards as a business owner.

so your front end offer needs to DO something. Anything. And you need to prove it. And it needs to be undeniable. This will establish you as a wizard. Which is the goal.

The goal of a front end offer is NOT to make money, NOT to get rich, it is just there to establish you as a wizard. Someone that actually gets things done. It's the START of a relationship, not the end.

The third world mind can not comprehend this.

So, what happens AFTER?

After we can sell them ANYTHING.

This man, for years, sold a weight loss product.

A human flaw is that we ascribe certain qualities to someone based on how high we hold them on our mind. You start to think that someone that can do one thing can really truly do everything.

So if we do GBP, yes we can upsell to Google Ads. It's a logical, easy step.

But we can also do a website revamp. We can also do Meta ads. We can probably also do print ads or billboards or basically ANYTHING we want.

For this guy - I closed them based on % of adspend. Something like 20% of adspend a month. And a set up fee. I think I charged them $995 setup + 20% of monthly adspend. Not telling you to do the same, this is just the number I came up with after figuring out their previous adspend.

Offer for Google Ads

Service: Google Ads

Niche: Landscapers

USP: 10-20 landscaping jobs per month or you don't pay.

Offer: I'll get you 5-15 jobs directly to your phone by using Google Ads or you don't pay.

Offers, right?

Offers are not the thing you might think they are.

Offers usually are described as something like this:

"I'll run your Google Ads."

"I'll manage your email marketing and build you new flows for your e-commerce store."

These are just SERVICE DESCRIPTIONS.

NOT OFFERS.

It's missing

- terms
- risk reversals
- and a specific (quantifiable) result
- mechanism

July 21 - Kick Off

Build Your Business LIVE is about doing the work AND attacking the next bottleneck on the list. Whatever that may be.

Things that I think are interesting:

- Do outreach and build the list
- Brainstorm new video idea + script
- Write the newsletter

First of all, how do you identify your bottleneck?

What is holding you back from making more money?

Where are you losing most time? Most revenue?

What is the next thing that would MOST help you?

Fuck everything else. Attack the next bottleneck. We'll fix the other problems once we get there.

For example: I see a fuckton of people asking: "but will I need like to get legal for Stripe and how does the payment thing work" etc

All of that makes zero sense if you don't have any clients. At all.

Most of your troubles will be TOP OF FUNNEL stuff right now. Later on you'll get other problems. Investing problems and staff problems and fulfillment problems and a whole shitload of other things.

But for most of you, all of that stuff isn't real. So it doesn't matter.

Life becomes much simpler if you just take one step at a time.

Intro

We set out to do something that no one has ever done before.

We will start a business that ANYONE can start, selling something ANYONE can sell and show you a step-by-step framework that ANYONE can follow.

Business In A Box is just that. We show you how to start a marketing agency, how to start prospecting, what to sell, how to scale it and much more.

But... no battleplan survives first contact with the enemy.

Or, to quote Mike Tyson:

“everyone has a plan until they get punched in the face”

That's why we're doing these Build Your Business Live calls.

Instead of talking about it, we show you how we actually DO the work.

You get to ask questions, you get to see the work being done, you get to keep up with the progress being made. Make sure you actively participate because we will use YOUR feedback to make these calls better and make sure they deliver what you need.

LIVE BLURB

We're going live for our Build Your Business LIVE call at 18:00 and YOU need to be there.

BIAB (Business in a Box) gives you a roadmap on how to start and scale a business.

The daily Build Your Business LIVE calls? They actually SHOW you how it's done. In real life. Because we're actually doing it ourselves. And you get to look behind the curtain.

This is where the rubber meets the road. No other school has anything remotely like this.

These calls are all about us ACTUALLY DOING what we tell you to do. Doing outreach, getting clients, dealing with everything that a real business owner deals with. We don't just talk the talk. We walk the walk.

Join, look inside, ask questions and keep up with the progress being made.

Make sure you actively participate because we will use YOUR feedback to make these calls better and make sure they deliver what you need.

See you there @Students.

Talk soon,

Arno

FUTURE LIVE TOPICS

(run ads - get back to this point)

Future topics I need to discuss with Can/Cun:

X- GMB checklist

- Landing page for follow up sales

- Ironclad SOPs

- Client onboarding

X- how to record a killer video

- CRMs and how not to lose track of leads

- what to do after top of funnel?

- If you were broke, how would you maximize your outreach?
